The effect of colloidal bismuth subcitrate on eradication of Helicobacter pylori from the gastric mucosa was examined in 20 patients by the combination of bismuth and metronidazole. Eradication of H. pylori was found in 16 (80%) of 20 patients. Side effects of the drugs, such as diarrhea and epigastralgia, were not observed in any patient. Considering that single-drug regimens for the treatment of H. pylori have not yet been proven effective, we conclude that combination of bismuth and metronidazole is a promising first-line therapy.
